JOHN BUNYAN.

BY THE AUTHOR OF 'MARK RUTHERFORD.'
With Photogravure Frontispiece and 11 Illustrations.

"No more perfect biographer could be found for Bunyan than the author of 'Mark Rutherford.' There is something Puritanical in the exquisite simplicity of his style, his high seriousness, his keen sympathy, which is saved from partisanship by the breadth and philosophy of his outlook. Understanding the hidden deeps of Bunyan's spiritual life, he has expounded his character, not in the formulas of a sect, but in the eternal phrases of humanity."—Spectator.

THEODORE WATTS-DUNTON,

Poet, Novelist, Critic. A Biographical and Critical Study.

BY JAMES DOUGLAS.

For many years Mr. Watts-Dunton has been urged to collect those numerous scattered writings of his in which are enunciated so many new ideas, especially the now famous doctrine taught in 'Aylwin' and 'The coming of Love'—that "the old impulse of wonder, which came to the human race in its infancy, has to come back and triumph before the morning of the final emancipation of man can dawn."

Mr. Watts-Dunton has been urged no less eagerly to publish a volume of reminiscences. It has been naturally felt that the friend of Rossetti, William Morris, George Borrow, Tennyson, Browning, James Russell Lowell, Madox Brown—and, indeed, of almost all the great men of the Victorian epoch—could produce a book of quite exceptional charm.

Over and over again he has promised, or seemed to promise, that he would undertake both these books, but years have rolled on and his promises remain unfulfilled. Now, in a letter to Mr. Douglas, printed in the introduction to this book, Mr. Watts-Dunton explains why he has never fulfilled them.

This is what gives Mr. Douglas, as he thinks, a raison d'etre for his book. As an intimate friend of Mr. Watts-Dunton's, moving in the circle in which Mr. Watts-Dunton moves, he is one of the few men who can give, or at least partially give, the reading public what has been so long desired.

Mr. Watts-Dunton has given Mr. Douglas permission to make a selection from his critical essays and also from his poems. In addition to these interesting features, the book contains a fascinating account of Mr. Watts-Dunton's early life, and identifies the originals of the various characters in 'Aylwin.'

The illustrations include photographs of interiors and art treasures at the "Pines," which have been specially taken for the volume.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN THE REALM OF THE CZAR.
SECOND EDITION IN THE PRESS, 6s.

THE DOWNFALL OF RUSSIA.

By HUGO GANZ.

This remarkable book, which has aroused enormous interest on the Continent, affords an unparalleled view of Russia at the present time. The writer ascertained the views of all sections of Russians, and the statements and opinions ascribed to officials in the highest position are of a startling and sensational kind.

RALPH CONNOR'S NEW NOVEL.
READY ON MONDAY, 6s.

THE PROSPECTOR.

By RALPH CONNOR, Author of 'The Sky Pilot,' &c.

Ralph Connor, from irresistible impulse, has returned to his beloved West—indeed, he has almost touched again upon the country which 'The Sky Pilot' and 'Black Rock' have immortalised. 'The Prospector' deals with the days before the smelter superseded the prospecting miner who panned gold when the country was peopled but sparsely, and by the usual motley crowd of prospectors, cowboys, ne'er-do-wells, and fortune-hunters. It is the strongest book Ralph Connor has written.

THE

National Gallery

By GUSTAVE GEFFROY.

With an Historical Introduction by Sir WALTER ARMSTRONG (Director of the National Gallery, Ireland).

FIRST PRESS NOTICES.

"A handsome volume, fully and finely illustrated."—Times.

"The arrangement of the work is excellent, the text being divided into schools, and giving compendious criticisms of each painter dealt with. Soundness is, above all, the quality which is desirable in a work of this description, and Mr. Geffroy will be found a thoroughly trustworthy guide. He has succeeded in producing a book at once delightful and useful."—Yorkshire Post.

"Mr. Geffroy is popular in style, but on the other hand the volume is sufficiently elaborate and dignified to satisfy superior taste. Mr. Geffroy's volume is handsome and complete, and pleasantly recalls the glories of a collection which, even as it is, is second to none in the world."—Scotsman.

"The schools are fully treated, all with judicious discrimination that adds importance to a great work. The illustrations are perfect. Art lovers cannot desire a more satisfactory presentment of the National Gallery."—Sheffield Telegraph.
